School Climate

intercantional centre of competence health promotion through school development

The Teacher Training University of Central Switzerland in Lucerne PHZ leads the centre of competence School Climate mandated by "education+health Network Switzerland" (a programme of BAG and EDK) and by the Cooperation for practice and research (specialists and projects of postgraduate professional studies from 18 different cantons). It coordinates know-how, which has been developed and approved since 1997 in cantonal concepts of postgraduate professional studies. It is their common aim, to support qualification and the building of structures for health promotion in schools. The centre cooperates with other centres of competence, especially with the Swiss Network of health promoting schools.

Qualification of key persons

- Key persons in schools know the methods of health promotion and they get knowledge in selected fields of health and health promotion
- They are prepared for their role as key person. They know how to anchor health promotion in their school and they plan their health promotion for the long term.
- They are able to plan actions and to realize their projects in a professional manner.

Building structures

Health promotion needs structures on cantonal, on local and on school level, to be effective. The professionals of the cooperation for practice and research and the centre of competence School Climate support this building of structures.

Services of the centre

- Organisation of symposiums for specialists
- Quality development
- Project support
- Counselling of new projects of postgraduate professional studies
- Research coordination
- Developing new services
- Information management
